(NYSE:BSX)

NATICK, Mass., March 10 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- Boston Scientific Corporation (NYSE: BSX) today announced that it plans to name a leadership team for its new Cardiac Rhythm Management (CRM) Group, which will become part of the Company following the acquisition of Guidant. The Company plans to install the new leadership team upon closing of the acquisition, which is expected to take place during the first week of April.

Upon closing of the acquisition, Guidant's CRM operations will become part of Boston Scientific's new CRM Group. The CRM leadership team will report to Jim Tobin, President and CEO of Boston Scientific. The team will consist of Mark Bartell, currently President of U.S. Sales Operations for Guidant; Fred Colen, currently Executive Vice President and Chief Technology Officer for Boston Scientific; and William McConnell, currently Vice President and Chief Information Officer for Guidant. Mr. McConnell is leading Guidant's integration planning with Boston Scientific.

"I'm very pleased to appoint such experienced and accomplished leaders for our new CRM Group," said Tobin. "We look forward to applying their combined talents to leading the recovery of the CRM business. We believe strongly the combination of Guidant's state-of-the-art technology and dedicated people will allow the new CRM leadership team to recover both market share and reputation. I am fully committed to providing them the resources they need to make this happen."

On January 25, Boston Scientific and Guidant announced they had entered into a merger agreement, under which Boston Scientific will acquire all the outstanding shares of Guidant for a combination of cash and stock worth $80 per Guidant share, or approximately $27 billion in aggregate.

Boston Scientific is a worldwide developer, manufacturer and marketer of medical devices whose products are used in a broad range of interventional medical specialties. For more information, please visit: <http://www.bostonscientific.com/>.
